Re: Hana's Haven

It is my understanding that Hana's Haven application for a sign in the window may be problematic because of a rule about the number of colors on any sign in a window. I am writing to support their request for their original sign, which is very tasteful and appropriately, for a nail salon, shows nails with various colors. Looking up and down Main Street I see numerous examples of businesses with colorful signs in their windows, including Squint Optometry, which has glasses of many colors in the window, various places with neon signs of multiple colors, and all the real estate businesses, with pictures of houses for sale in their windows. Hana's sign is so much more tasteful than any of them, and is conservative in size and style.

I do hope you will rule in their favor.

Sincerely,
